

Online version | Add Emirates to your safe senders list

Emirates

Special Offers | Partner Offers | Featured Fares

Emirates

Special Offers
Partner Offers
Featured Fares

Australia Travel Declaration

The Australia Government requires all travellers to Australia to provide information to help prevent the spread of COVID-19. To enable this, the Australian Government introduced the Australia Travel Declaration for selected travellers to Australia on 4 November 2020.

From 9 December 2020, all travellers to Australia should complete the Australia Travel Declaration before they fly to Australia.

The Australia Travel Declaration form collects information from travellers before departure to Australia. The information collected includes their flight details, quarantine requirements (if required), health status and contact details. This information helps the Australian Government determine quarantine arrangements and also allows the relevant health departments to contact a traveller if someone they were in contact with during their flight tests positive for COVID-19.

Travellers should complete the Australia Travel Declaration and need to be aware of the following:

- Information about the Australia Travel Declaration and a link to the declaration is available on the Home Affairs website
- The Department has authorised a third party to collect the Australia Travel Declaration information its behalf. Travellers will be redirected from the Home Affairs website to an external Australia Travel Declaration page. Once they have submitted their declaration, they will receive a confirmation email from 'AU- Health Aero no-reply@health.aero'
- They should complete the Australia Travel Declaration a minimum of 72 hours before their departure for Australia. Please note clients can complete their declaration up until departure, but this may cause delays on arrival in Australia.
- If a traveller does not complete the Australia Travel Declaration it may result in the traveller not being able to board their flight, and it will cause delays when they arrive in Australia.
- Once they have completed the Australia Travel Declaration, they will receive an email with details to be shown (either electronically or printed) to airline staff prior to boarding.
- There are only two groups of travellers that do not need to complete the Australia Travel Declaration: Flight crew and Diplomats

For the latest updates on the Australia Travel Declaration please continue to check the Home Affairs website

Travellers are still required to ensure they understand all entry requirements when coming to Australia. Please ensure the latest official guidance is followed.

Australia Travel Declaration

The Australia Government requires all travellers to Australia to provide information to help prevent the spread of COVID-19. To enable this, the Australian Government introduced the Australia Travel Declaration for selected travellers to Australia on 4 November 2020.

From 9 December 2020, all travellers to Australia should complete the Australia Travel Declaration before they fly to Australia.

The Australia Travel Declaration form collects information from travellers before departure to Australia. The information collected includes their flight details, quarantine requirements (if required), health status and contact details. This information helps the Australian Government determine quarantine arrangements and also allows the relevant health departments to contact a traveller if someone they were in contact with during their flight tests positive for COVID-19.

Travellers should complete the Australia Travel Declaration and need to be aware of the following:

- Information about the Australia Travel Declaration and a link to the declaration is available on the Home Affairs website
- The Department has authorised a third party to collect the Australia Travel Declaration information its behalf. Travellers will be redirected from the Home Affairs website to an external Australia Travel Declaration page. Once they have submitted their declaration, they will receive a confirmation email from 'AU- Health Aero no-reply@health.aero'
- They should complete the Australia Travel Declaration a minimum of 72 hours before their departure for Australia. Please note clients can complete their declaration up until departure, but this may cause delays on arrival in Australia.
- If a traveller does not complete the Australia Travel Declaration it may result in the traveller not being able to board their flight, and it will cause delays when they arrive in Australia.
- Once they have completed the Australia Travel Declaration, they will receive an email with details to be shown (either electronically or printed) to airline staff prior to boarding.
- There are only two groups of travellers that do not need to complete the Australia Travel Declaration: Flight crew and Diplomats

For the latest updates on the Australia Travel Declaration please continue to check the Home Affairs website

Travellers are still required to ensure they understand all entry requirements when coming to Australia. Please ensure the latest official guidance is followed.

Discover Emirates

Shop Emirates

Celebrate the joy of travel with us and take home a piece of our iconic Emirates branded merchandise from the Official Store.

Learn more >

Inflight Entertainment

Fly better with up to 4,000 channels on our award-winning inflight entertainment system, ice.

Learn more >

The Emirates Service

Your comfort comes first when you fly with Emirates.

Learn more >

Shop Emirates

Celebrate the joy of travel with us and take home a piece of our iconic Emirates branded merchandise from the Official Store.

Learn more >

Inflight Entertainment

Fly better with up to 4,000 channels on our award-winning inflight entertainment system, ice.

Learn more >

The Emirates Service

Your comfort comes first when you fly with Emirates.

Learn more >

